As part of the "Ruhr 2010" festival, B.S.L. Boyer Schulze planned to build a play area in the form of a coal mine, to commemorate the mining history of Holzwickede. Based on the model of the coal mine "Caroline", this play area was designed and erected on the former mine shaft. Not only is the outer appearance reminiscent of the old mine; inside, the children can experience the world of mining up close.

The winding tower is ca. 11 m high and can be climbed up to a height of 6 meters. There is a working cable shaft which children can use to transport water to the top, which then runs down again via a gutter system. In the "wash house" the miners can rest before the rush for the 12 m long slide. The play areas in the lower area are accessible on foot and by wheelchair.
